Montreal Physicians Say Royal Patient Has Peritonitis in Grave Form.

VICE-REGAL STAFF ANXIOUS

Princess Patricia Arranges to Occupy Apartment Near Her Mother.

MONTREAL, Quebec, June 5.—That the Duchess of Connaught is seriously ill from peritonitis, brought on by a sudden attack of appendicitis, is the result of the diagnosis of the three doctors who have had Her Royal Highness under observation since her arrival at the Royal Victoria Hospital last night. The members of the vice regal staff make no secret of their fears, and are awaiting with the keenest anxiety the final report of the surgeons as to the necessity or otherwise of an operation. The doctors will be unable to decide for wo or three days.

At first sight, it would appear that the bulletin issued to-day was reassuring. It read as follows:

not give rise to undue anxiety A. E. GARROW, M. D.: W. W. CHIPMAN, M. D., E. S. WORTHINGTON, M. D.

The Duke is making brave efforts to conceal his own nervousness, and he and the Princess Patricia made a plucky appearance in public. The Governor-General was at his wife's side shortly after 8 o'clock, however, and the Princess followed later on. Sir Edward Clouston formerly general manager of the Bank of Montreal, was an early caller, but only remained a few minutes.

This afternoon an official statement from the hospital said that her Royal Highness was "resting easily," and inquiries later elicited the same response. Arrangements had been made for Princess Patricia to spend the night at the hospital in an apartment adjoining the private ward of the Duchess, but as no untoward effects were noticed as a result of the journey from Quebec this was considered unnecessary and both the Duke and Princess Patricia spent the night at Lord Strathcona's residence.
